1. This work has to be done, however, I think it should be spelled out as being something that happens in phases. First phase obviously is to find out exactly what the vehicle has and then lay down beside that the capabilities that are required. The difference then is what the facility will have to make up. This is quite different from gathering together from all sources and ELINT systems in a sort of a shot gun approach.

2. I definitely would keep the facility people out of the vehicle if at all possible.
